

Enquire vs. Prosumer Grant Management Systems Comparison

There are a range of prosumer software solutions now capable of performing processes that were traditionally handled in purpose-built grant management systems. These options may seem appealing if you are looking to optimise part of your process, such as application management. For transparent, integrated grant management professional grants teams prefer end-to-end solutions with reporting capabilities, such as Enquire.

The Enquire grant management system	Prosumer solutions
A purpose-built grant management system featuring off the shelf solutions for application, assessment, reporting and acquittal.	Features are not optimised for the entire grant lifecycle, but rather portions of it.
Integrated automatic data capture throughout business processes, supported by analytics and reporting features.	Data siloes and a lack of integrated reporting across grant processes.
End-to-end grants management system with standard integrations to support payments and other processes using your existing systems.	Increased monetary and time costs due to ad-hoc processes and additional software implementations to patch gaps in the grant lifecycle.
20 years of experience managing complex implementations across organisations of all sizes, in the not-for-profit, government, higher education and corporate sectors.	Support and implementation teams which lack expertise and grant domain-knowledge.
Enquire's roles-based permissions enable collaboration throughout the system, with learning materials and a dedicated support team to get new users up to speed.	Negative effects on staff training and collaboration wrought by the compounding effects of the challenges listed above.

What to look for in a grants system

Modern grants systems should provide full lifecycle capabilities to:

- create funding opportunities
- assess and award funds
- process payments using automations and calculations
- set impact goals and fully track outcomes
- manage documentation
- schedule tasks and track milestones
- configure business process workflows

How Enquire compares

To prosumer systems

Unlike prosumer products, Enquire was purpose built for every grant management requirement, so your data is centralised for optimal collaboration and project efficiency.

To other vendors

Enquire has the configurability custom systems lack, the user-friendly design and reporting you won't find in a legacy system, and the full lifecycle management features that you can only achieve with multiple prosumer products.
